Showing 1-9 of 9 "True magic therefore is the high knowledge of the more subtle powers that have not yet been acknowledged by science up to this date because the methods of scrutiny that have been applied so far do not suffice for their grasping, understanding and utilization, although the laws of magic are analogous to all official sciences of the world." — Franz Bardon "It is of course quite a different matter when a seeker, no longer satisfied with materialism or dogma and yearning for spiritual nourishment, asks an initiate for advice and enlightenment. In such an instance the initiate is duty bound to enlighten the seeker in accordance with his perceptive faculties. The magician should spare neither time nor effort to communicate his spiritual treasures to the seeker and lead him towards the light." — Franz Bardon, Initiation Into Hermetics "Therefore remember: Always fall asleep with peaceful and harmonious thoughts or with thoughts of success, health and inner peacefulness." — Franz Bardon, Initiation Into Hermetics "According to the universal laws, the magician will form his own point of view about the universe which henceforth will be his true religion." — Franz Bardon "The entire universe can be compared to a clockwork with wheels that engage with each other and which are interdependent with each other." — Franz Bardon, Initiation Into Hermetics "We were born in charge of our own being, our own personality. Other people's personalities are beyond our control." — Franz Bardon Franz Bardon was a Czech occultist and student and teacher of Hermetics. "Life is not a fairground, but a school. Franz Bardon" — Franz Bardon It is of course quite a different matter when a seeker, no longer satisfied with materialism or dogma and yearning for spiritual nourishment, asks an initiate for advice and enlightenment. In such an instance the initiate is duty bound to enlighten the seeker in accordance with his perceptive faculties. The magician should spare neither time nor effort to communicate his spiritual treasures to the seeker and lead him towards the light. — Franz Bardon We were born in charge of our own being, our own personality. Other people's personalities are beyond our control. — Franz Bardon The incipient magician will confess his faith to a universal religion. He will find out that every religion has good points as well as bad ones. He will therefore keep the best of it for himself and ignore the weak points, which does not necessarily mean that he must profess a religion, but he shall express awe to each for of worship, for each religion has its proper principle of God, whether the point in question be Christianity, Buddhism, Islam or any other kind of religion. — Franz Bardon Fundamentally, however, there is neither good nor evil; this is all based on human concepts. In the universe there exists neither good nor evil, because everything has been created in accordance with immutable laws, the divine principles are reflected in these laws, and only through knowing these laws will we be able to get close to the divine. — Franz Bardon There are no limits, and that applies to everyone on earth. — Franz Bardon Wisdom does not depend on mind and memory but on the maturity, purity and perfection of the individual personality ... Therefore, insights are not passed on through the mind, but - and this particularly - through intuition or inspiration. The degree of wisdom is therefore determined by the state of development of the individual. — Franz Bardon According to the universal laws, the magician will form his own point of view about the universe which henceforth will be his true religion. — Franz Bardon Quite a different thing is, if a seeker, dissatisfied by materialism and doctrines, and longing for spiritual support, will ask advice and information of an adept. In such a case the adept is obliged to supply the seeker with spiritual light and insight, according to his mental powers. Then the magician should spare neither time nor pains to communicate his spiritual treasures and lead the seeker to the light. — Franz Bardon One must first become a magician before one he can become a Kabbalist. As a Kabbalist, one works differently and more advantageously. — Franz Bardon The pure mystic wishes to approach his God only in the all-embracing love. The yogi, too, walks toward one single aspect of God. The bhakti-yogi keeps to the road of love and devotion, the raja and hatha yogi choose the path of self-control or volition, the jnana yogi will follow that of wisdom and cognition. — Franz Bardon The idea that by eating the meat of an animal, the animal powers or faculties could be conveyed to oneself is nonsense and originates in a mental ignorance of the perfect and genuine primitive laws. — Franz Bardon Through a particular magical practice it is possible to modify the being that has only one element into a being with four elements and to give it an immortal spirit. But a magical will seldom intervene without good reason, because he is responsible and must justify his actions before Divine Providence. — Franz Bardon The physical world is the point of departure from whence the magician works and upon which every human being, initiated or not, live and moves through his senses, his spirit, his soul and his physical body. — Franz Bardon Want to see more pictures of Franz Bardon quotes? Now let us regard the idea of God from the magic standpoint, according to the four elements, the so-called tetragrammaton, the unspeakable, the supreme: the fiery principle involves the almightiness and the omnipotence, the airy principle owns the wisdom, purity and clarity, from which aspect proceeds the universal lawfulness. Love and eternal life are attributed to the watery principle, and omnipresence, and consequently eternity belong to the earth principle. These four aspects together represent the supreme Godhead. Whoever is willing to enter the magic path should regard it as his sacred duty to practice regular exercises. He ought to be kind, generous and tolerant with his fellow men, but relentless and hard with himself. Only such behavior will be followed by success in magic. - Author: Franz Bardon #2. Everything that can be found in the universe on a large scale is reflected in a human being on a small scale. - Author: Franz Bardon #3. A true initiate will never force anyone who has not reached a certain level of maturity to accept his truth. - Author: Franz Bardon #4. A true magician must not undertake anything regarding which he is not thoroughly informed. - Author: Franz Bardon #5. When friendship disappears then there is a space left open to that awful loneliness of the outside world which is like the cold space between the planets. It is an air in which men perish utterly. - Author: Hilaire Belloc #6. The physical world is the point of departure from whence the magician works and upon which every human being, initiated or not, live and moves through his senses, his spirit, his soul and his physical body. - Author: Franz Bardon #7. We were born in charge of our own being, our own personality. Other people's personalities are beyond our control. - Author: Franz Bardon #8. When you forgive people, events and circumstances, you are in the process of change, which leads you towards dominant universal emotion called love. - Author: Hina Hashmi #9. The only guardians you, as a magician, are likely to meet would be the ones merely trying to protect you from yourself. - Author: Marten Crawford #10. Be kind and generous to your fellows, but hard and relentless with yourself. - Author: Franz Bardon
